A wooden panel, masquerading as a sliding door, conceals a hidden treasure and an intimate space that is quite simply a cinema-goer's dream. Welcome to La Mamounia's enchanting Cinéma. Twenty roomy seats in deep blue velvet complete with plush cushions and dimmed lighting: the place seems all set for a private Hollywood screening.

Les Jardins

To conjure up the gardens of La Mamounia is to journey to the very heart of its legend.

The legend of La Mamounia began in its gardens in the 18th century, when Prince Al-Mamoun inherited a vast thirteen-hectare estate from his father. He turned it into a venue renowned for its «nzaha» - the magnificent open-air receptions of the great Moroccan tradition.

Two centuries later, La Mamounia hotel was born, and went on to become a legendary palace, the only one in the world to bear a female name.

A haven of peace, tranquillity and beauty, it was prized by the great and the good of high society, who found here the peace and intimacy to which they aspired.

Les Lanternes

Marking a transition between the swimming pool and the restaurant, the Italien by Jean Georges, these three new spaces create a harmonious visual surprise.

Reinventing the lounge in the form of intimate tents, at night-time the Lanternes spaces appear like soft beacons of light punctuating the hotel's exterior façade.

Slightly elevated from the hustle and bustle of the hotel, and shaded from the sun by their light-coloured coverings, they lend themselves perfectly to a variety of activities. Comfortably seated on sumptuous cushions, why not v lunch or dinner here, or simply relax with a good book?

La Mamounia is also a product brand that brings together nature and very high quality: delicate and flavoursome olive oil made with olives straight from our gardens, argan produced by a cooperative of Moroccan women, and honey from the Moroccan countryside. All of our produce is ethical and fair trade.

Perfumes made exclusively for La Mamounia

Candles and diffusers based on the hotel's unique fragrances take pride of place, including cedar, date and orange blossom. They have been created exclusively for the palace. They accompany you throughout your stay at the hotel, and you can carry these delicate fragrances home with you when you leave. For those who have not yet enjoyed a stay at La Mamounia, offer these olfactory gems as a gift.

La Mamounia Style

In terms of the interior design, cushions are decorated with original patterns that use the traditional colours of the zellige tilework. The superb Yahya lanterns boast a simple and elegant design. Their clean, flowing lines diffuse a unique light. Albums and books feature magnificent images that immortalise the hotel's legendary spaces, bringing out the beautifully contrasting shifting light, and paying tribute to all the master craftsmen who have contributed to its beauty.
